Course Description and Instructor Information

This course helps students understand the world better by studying significant interpretations of self, the world, and God that have been offered by thinkers, past and present – the major concerns of philosophy. Meets the general studies core requirement in Heritage and Institutions (Philosophy).

Philosophy is the study and application of logic and reasoning to life’s most interesting issues, problems, and questions. Clear thinking comes neither naturally nor easily. Philosophy is the art and science of learning how to think.

Course Objectives

The purpose of this course is to provide an introduction to philosophy. By the end of the course you should be able to:

1) Read philosophy: Philosophy can be difficult to read. Learning to read it can improve both your mental stamina and your ability to think.

2) Understand the importance of ultimate questions: You should be able to identify, formulate and explain the ultimate questions of philosophy.

3) Write and think philosophically: We will try to understand what makes philosophical writing and reasoning distinctive, and try to develop these skills in each of you.

Of course, it is impossible to fully realize any of the three goals in one course. The purpose of this course is to gain a basic sense for the practice of philosophy with these goals in mind.

Course Requirements

1. Three Exams. You will have three short answer exams covering lecture material and book material. Each exam will be worth fifteen points. 45 points total

2. Three Assignments. There will be three assignments. Each assignment will cover one of the course objectives. Each assignment will be worth fifteen points. 45 points total.

3. Professionalism. Attendance, tardiness, and behavior in class will either have negative or positive impact upon your grade. It is difficult to keep coming to class, to keep being on time, and to stay focused. Persistence is much more important than brilliance in life. This is a test of your persistence. Specifically, for every week of class you miss, you will be docked a point. Anytime your talking is cause for class delay, you will be docked a point. 10 points total.

Three are 100 points possible. To earn an A or A- you will have to score 90 points or more. To earn a B+, B, or B- you will have to score between 80 and 89 points. To earn a C+, C, or C- you will have to score between 70 and 79 points. If you score between 60 and 69 points you will earn a D. Anything below 60 points will earn you an F.

I’ve included a place for you to record your scores throughout the semester. Write down your score and you will be able to know what your grade is at any point in the semester. The only part of your grade not included is your professionalism grade (10 points).
