

Travel and Lodging

Airports:

You will have a few options in making your air travel plans. This is because Azusa Pacific University is fairly centrally located between a number of airports. Ontario International is officially nearest and is often the least expensive. But Orange County, Long Beach, and LAX are all within sensible driving distances as well.

Lodging:

The University has a working relationship with the Embassy Suites Hotel of Los Angeles and Covina/soon to be Radisson Suites (in the process of a merge).

Phone 626-915-3441 or 1-800-362-2779 (reservations)

(<http://www.embassysuites.com/en/es/hotels/index.jhtml?ctyhocn=LAXGRES>). The address is: 1211 East Garvey Street, Covina, California, United States 91724

This is a rather nice hotel that, as the name suggests, provides two-room suites only. The conference rate is $112 per night, $122 for double-occupancy. We recognize that this rate is still somewhat more expensive than might be hoped. Of course there are less expensive lodging options in the area. Nevertheless, we are encouraging our conferees to consider the Embassy Suites as a first choice. A shuttle service to and from the campus is provided free of charge. Furthermore, the rate includes a complimentary full breakfast (made to order) each morning and a free open-bar “Manager’s Happy Hour” each evening. Finally, the hotel’s restaurant and bar can provide us with an excellent venue for late night post-session philosophizing and general hanging-out. We urge you, then, to make plans to share a suite. To get the conference rate, be sure to indicate your participation with the SCP at Azusa Pacific and make your reservations before February 1st. Feel free to contact us if you are attending alone and would like to find a roommate (or two!).

Driving directions to the conference:

The conference is being held in the Duke Academic Complex on the West Campus of Azusa Pacific University. From the 210 Freeway, exit at Citrus Ave. Go north on Citrus Ave. You will pass the East Campus of the University on your right. Turn left on Foothill Blvd. The West Campus will be on your right. Follow the signs to the conference.
